Darius is a complex and well-developed character. He is intelligent, sensitive, and creative, but he is also struggling to find his place in the world. He is often misunderstood and marginalized by those around him, and he feels like he is constantly being judged. Despite these challenges, Darius is determined to find his own path and to live his life on his own terms.

The novel is written in a beautiful and lyrical style. Awkward-Rich's use of language is evocative and sensual, and his descriptions of the natural world are particularly stunning. The novel is also full of humor and wit, and Awkward-Rich has a knack for capturing the absurdity of everyday life.

Gone Fishing is a powerful and moving exploration of Black masculinity. The novel is a must-read for anyone interested in contemporary African-American literature, and it is sure to stay with you long after you finish it.
