The journey is challenging, but it's also incredibly rewarding. You'll need to be in good physical condition and have some kayaking experience, but you don't need to be an expert. With a little planning and preparation, anyone can complete this amazing trip.

Planning Your Trip

The first step in planning your kayaking trip from San Diego to Cabo San Lucas is to decide on a route. There are two main options:

- The Inside Passage: This route takes you along the protected waters of the Sea of Cortez. It's a longer route, but it's also more sheltered from the wind and waves.
- The Outside Passage: This route takes you along the open waters of the Pacific Ocean. It's a shorter route, but it's also more exposed to the elements.

Once you've chosen a route, you'll need to decide on a launch date. The best time to kayak from San Diego to Cabo San Lucas is during the spring or fall, when the weather is mild and the water is calm.

You'll also need to pack for your trip. Be sure to bring plenty of food, water, and sunscreen, as well as a tent, sleeping bag, and other camping gear. You'll also need to bring a kayak, paddle, and life jacket.
