A Tapestry of Identity and Belief

Sarah's journey is an exploration of identity, faith, and the complexities of human relationships. As she grapples with her beliefs and the conflicting expectations of her community, Sarah embarks on a quest to discover her true self and find a place where she can reconcile her convictions with the demands of the world around her.

Unveiling the Past

Through Sarah's eyes, we witness the tumultuous events that shaped the American colonies during this transformative era. From the Salem witch trials to the rise of the Quaker movement, Howe brings the past to life, inviting readers to experience the hardships, prejudices, and triumphs that defined this period.

A Captivating Cast of Characters

The novel introduces a vivid cast of characters who embody the complexities and contradictions of colonial society. Sarah's parents, devout Puritans, struggle to comprehend their daughter's decision to embrace a dissenting faith. Thomas Macy, a Quaker who becomes Sarah's mentor and guide, reveals the power of compassion and acceptance.

Historical Depth and Literary Brilliance

Drawing extensively from historical records and primary sources, Howe weaves a meticulously crafted narrative that transports readers directly into the past. Her command of language and evocative descriptions immerse readers in the sights, sounds, and emotions of 17th-century New England.

A Window into a Forgotten World

"Conversion" is not just a fictional account; it is a window into a forgotten world and a reminder of the enduring human desire to seek meaning, find belonging, and forge a path that is uniquely our own.

Critical Acclaim and Awards

Since its publication, "Conversion" has garnered widespread critical acclaim and received numerous awards, including the John Newbery

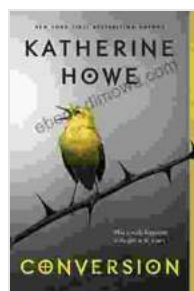

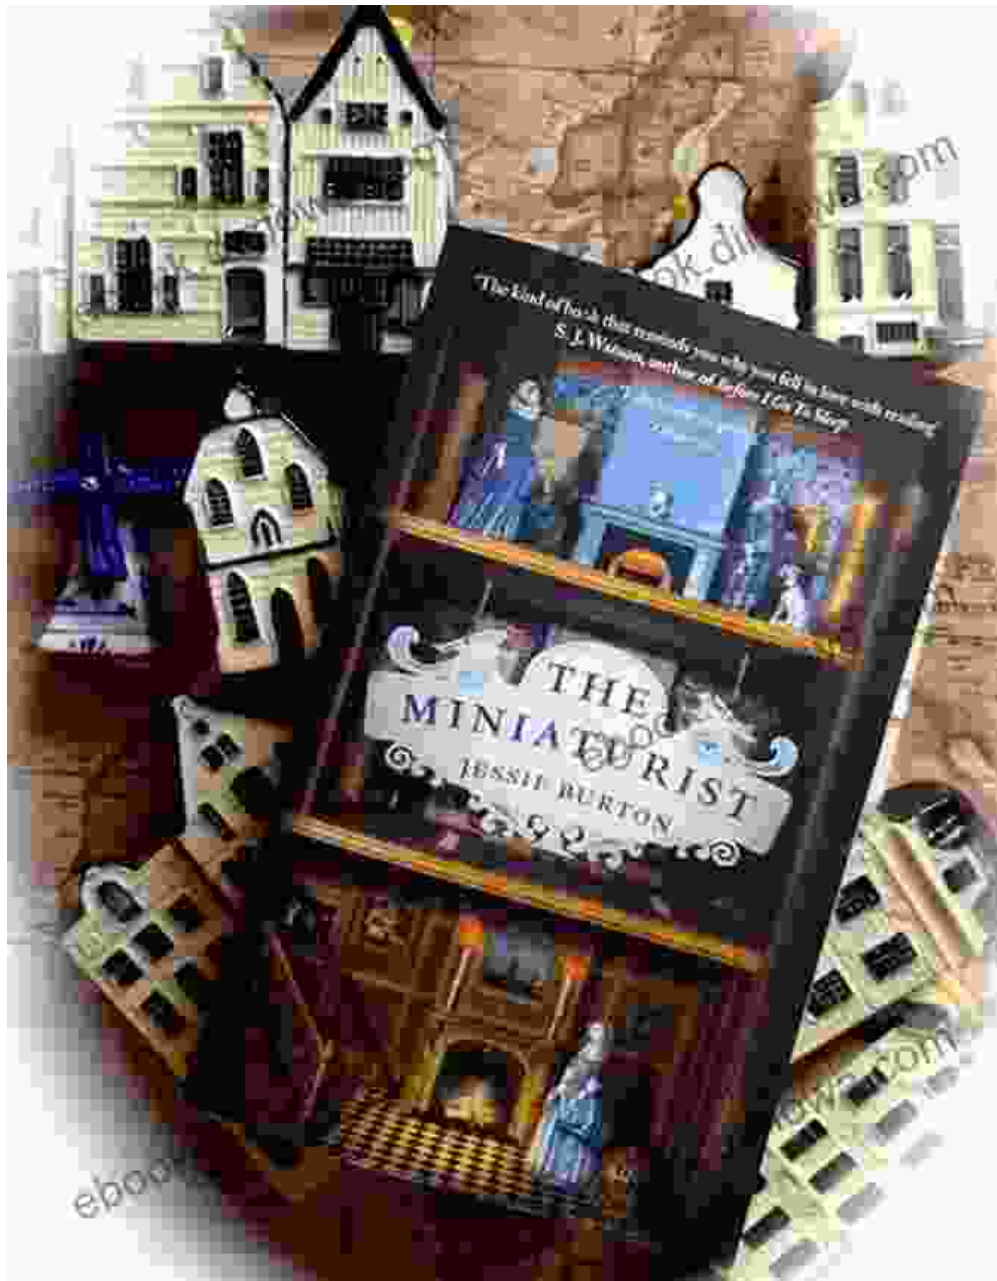

Medal, the National Book Award for Young People's Literature, and the Horn Book Award.

A Literary Masterpiece for All Ages

Whether you're an avid reader of historical fiction, a student of American history, or simply seeking an immersive and thought-provoking tale, "Conversion" by Katherine Howe is a literary masterpiece that will captivate your mind and leave an enduring mark on your soul.
