

We've Got to Do Better: How Race, Poverty, and Power Fuel the School-to-Prison Pipeline

In this powerful and eye-opening book, renowned civil rights lawyer Michelle Alexander exposes the hidden connections between race, poverty, and power that fuel the school-to-prison pipeline. Through a series of gripping stories and incisive analysis, Alexander reveals how the criminalization of poverty and the over-policing of communities of color are creating a new generation of prisoners.

We've got to do better: Breaking the chains by Joyce Sutphen

★★★★★ 5 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 464 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 56 pages
Lending	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported

Alexander argues that we must urgently rethink our approach to crime and punishment, and invest in education, jobs, and other opportunities that will help to break the cycle of poverty and violence. We've Got to Do Better is a must-read for anyone who cares about the future of our country.

"A powerful and necessary book that should be required reading for anyone who cares about justice in America." - Bryan Stevenson, author

of Just Mercy

"Michelle Alexander has written a brilliant and devastating book that exposes the deep and systemic racism that is poisoning our criminal justice system." - Van Jones, CNN commentator and author of The Green Collar Economy

"We've Got to Do Better is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the root causes of mass incarceration and the school-to-prison pipeline." - Angela Davis, author of Are Prisons Obsolete?

About the Author

Michelle Alexander is a civil rights lawyer and legal scholar who has dedicated her career to fighting for racial justice. She is the author of the groundbreaking book The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Colorblindness, which has been translated into fourteen languages and has sold more than one million copies worldwide. Alexander is a recipient of the MacArthur Foundation "genius" grant and a Soros Justice Fellowship. She is a professor at Ohio State University Moritz College of Law.

Table of Contents

- 1.
2. The Criminalization of Poverty
3. The Over-Policing of Communities of Color
4. The School-to-Prison Pipeline
5. Rethinking Crime and Punishment
6. Investing in Education, Jobs, and Opportunity

7. Breaking the Cycle of Poverty and Violence

8.

Reviews

"A powerful and necessary book that should be required reading for anyone who cares about justice in America." - Bryan Stevenson, author of Just Mercy

"Michelle Alexander has written a brilliant and devastating book that exposes the deep and systemic racism that is poisoning our criminal justice system." - Van Jones, CNN commentator and author of The Green Collar Economy

"We've Got to Do Better is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the root causes of mass incarceration and the school-to-prison pipeline." - Angela Davis, author of Are Prisons Obsolete?

Free Download Your Copy Today!

We've Got to Do Better is available now at all major bookstores and online retailers.

Free Download your copy today!

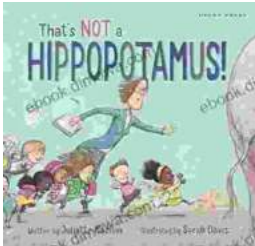

We've got to do better: Breaking the chains by Joyce Sutphen

★★★★★ 5 out of 5

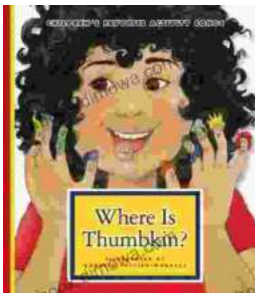

Language : English
File size : 464 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 56 pages

Lending : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported

Unleash the Magic Within: "That's Not a Hippopotamus, Juliette MacIver"

Step into a Realm Where Anything Is Possible "That's Not a Hippopotamus, Juliette MacIver" is an extraordinary children's book that sparks the imagination...

Where Is Thumbkin? A Journey Through Beloved Children's Songs

In the realm of childhood, there exists a treasure trove of songs that have woven their way into the fabric of our collective memory. Among these...