Fishing

Berkeley County is home to a variety of fishing spots, catering to anglers of all levels. From the tranquil waters of the Potomac River to the fast-flowing Cacapon River, there's something for everyone.

Potomac River

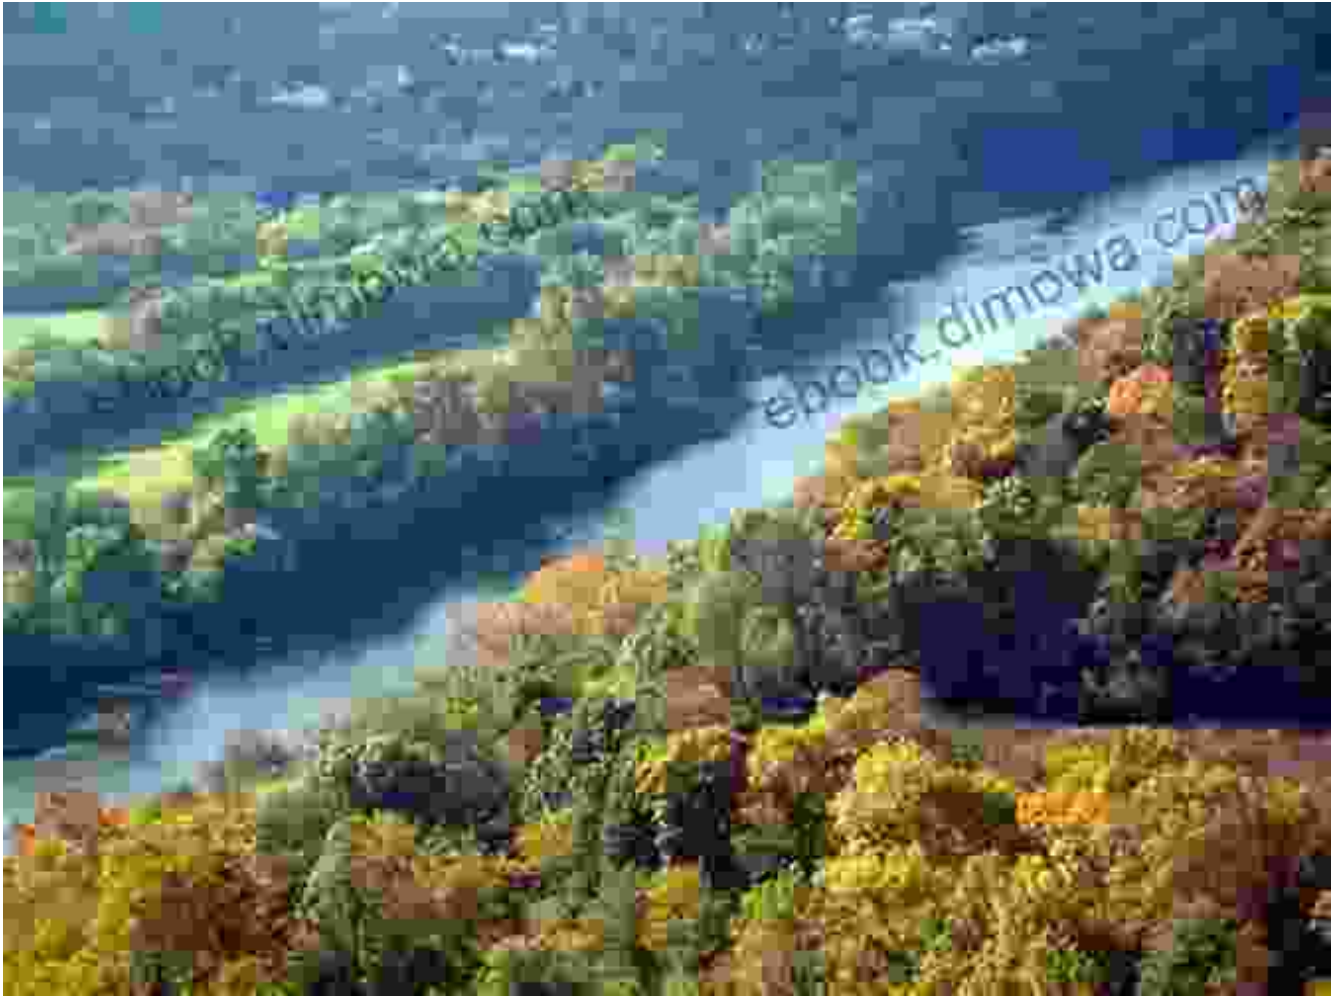

The Potomac River forms the northern boundary of Berkeley County and offers excellent fishing for a variety of species, including smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, catfish, and panfish. The river's wide, slow-moving waters are perfect for casting a line from the shore or trolling from a boat.

Shenandoah River

The Shenandoah River flows through the eastern part of Berkeley County and is known for its clear waters and abundance of trout. Anglers can try their luck at catching rainbow trout, brown trout, and brook trout in this beautiful river.

Cacapon River

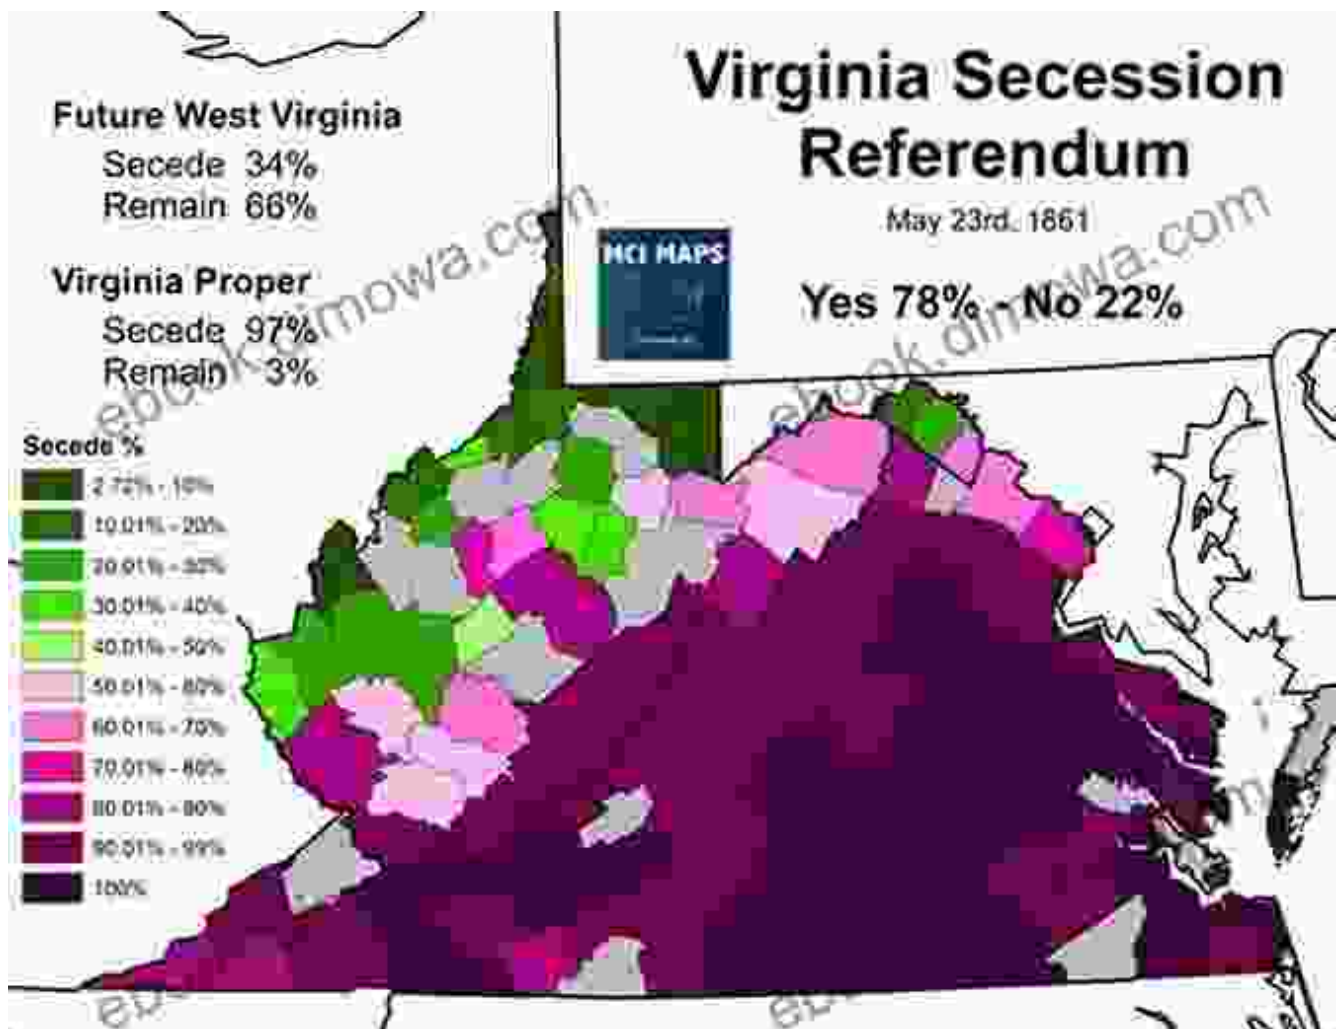

The Cacapon River is a fast-flowing river that cuts through the heart of Berkeley County. It's a popular destination for experienced anglers who enjoy challenging themselves against wild trout.

Sleepy Creek Lake

Sleepy Creek Lake is a 100-acre lake located in the northern part of Berkeley County. It's a popular spot for fishing, boating, and camping. Anglers can expect to catch a variety of fish in the lake, including largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, crappie, and bluegill.

Lake Secession

Lake Secession is a 150-acre lake located in the southern part of Berkeley County. It's a popular spot for fishing and boating. Anglers can expect to catch a variety of fish in the lake, including largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, crappie, and bluegill.

Floating

In addition to fishing, Berkeley County also offers a variety of floating opportunities. From leisurely floats down the Potomac River to more adventurous trips on the Cacapon River, there's something for everyone.

Potomac River

The Potomac River is a great place for a relaxing float trip. The river's slow-moving waters and scenic landscapes make it a perfect way to spend a lazy afternoon. You can bring your own float or rent one from a local outfitter.

Shenandoah River

The Shenandoah River is a more challenging float than the Potomac River, but it's still a great option for beginners. The river's clear waters and beautiful scenery make it a worthwhile trip.

Cacapon River

The Cacapon River is a great choice for experienced floaters who enjoy whitewater rapids. The river's fast-flowing waters and technical rapids provide a fun and challenging experience.

Camping

If you're planning a fishing or floating trip to Berkeley County, there are a number of campgrounds where you can stay. From primitive campsites along the rivers to more developed campgrounds with amenities like showers and laundry facilities, there's something to fit every need.

Some of the most popular campgrounds in Berkeley County include:

- Berkeley Springs State Park
- Cacapon Resort State Park
- Sleepy Creek Lake Recreation Area
- Shenandoah River State Park

- Potomac River State Forest

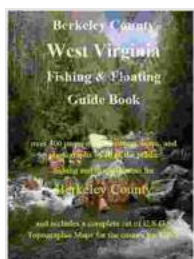

Planning Your Trip

If you're planning a fishing or floating trip to Berkeley County, there are a few things you'll need to do to prepare.

First, you'll need to Free Download a fishing license. You can do this online or at any local sporting goods store. You'll also need to check the fishing regulations for Berkeley County to make sure you're aware of any restrictions.

If you're planning on floating, you'll need to bring your own float or rent one from a local outfitter. You'll also need to make sure you have the proper safety gear, such as a life jacket and a whistle.

Once you've got your gear in Free Download, you're ready to start planning your trip. There are a number of resources available to help you find the best fishing and floating spots in Berkeley County. You can check online fishing forums, talk to local anglers, or consult with a guide.
